

Story idea:

Knockout league characters in a zombie apocalypse

The Pirate would find out about Zombies after visiting an island of them

He was angry that he lost the championship in the knockout league so he decided to put out his frustrations onto them

He took his gun and replaced his hook with a sword and made himself get so furious not only did he turn red but he couldn't think straight

One of them however got in the ship without him realizing

After he was done he continued trying to numb his pain with bottles of booze

When he'd arrive to the city

When the apocalypse began the Iron Maiden was letting some attack her but if they weren't strong enough she'd punch them away

Then she decided to let a hoard to attack her but that was when Barrage showed up and cleared them out

Iron Maiden wouldn't exactly be happy with it but if it meant she could fight against Barrage she'd team up with her

Barrage took that as a compliment and was excited about the time when they'd find a safe bunker to fight in

The magician and Tri-Tip found each other at the top of a building

And the magician decided to make a duo of them so that they could attack zombies from really far away with his portals

Scurvy Jones and... octodad? Whatever the squid was met each other when Scurvy tried to sail away from the city and convince himself that it wasn't his fault that the end of the world began

Sir Octo Punch did see his ship when he was swimming and climbed up to see what was up

When he heard Jones talking to himself he explained that talking to him wouldn't fix the problem but at least making it easier for everybody else would by killing as many Zombies as possible

Jones completely ignored him saying things like how he'd poach him if he didn't go away

Sir Octo however would try to explain his thought process and tell him he would not only be a voluble asset to have in such a situation but also he could be a great leader considering how many ships he took down with his crew

Jones would say "what crew"

"..."

"you get the point" in the end Jones would turn the ship around but only because the loot in the city would make his ship less susceptible by Zombies

Volt and Crimson Fang would meet in his lab

Volt would want to try to take half of the soul energy from her mask as a fuel source for his next project because his new legs were powerful but if he used the only fuel source he had he would have to wear a backpack sized battery on his back

Crimson Fang though instead of giving up her mask instead tried to find ways to cut off power and better resources for power

Like how he could just turn off the electric legs when he would hit his opponent instead of keeping it on for long

When Volt and Jones meet each other Volt would make him an electric fist using all of the tips he got from Crimson Fang and since Jones was a giant he wouldn't have difficulty carrying around a big battery on his back

When barrage and Great Magician would meet he would have her barrage through enemies using his portals

Tri tip would feel like he wasn't able to help the team in any way but teaching Barrage how to use the fire fist that he used in the battle against "the player" and bringing food from the place where he used to train

Once Barrage would have to barrage through thousands of Zombies using the portal to get to the Bunker but she wasn't fast enough

Even with the help of everyone else there were too many of them

Then there would be a glow of yellow that would be getting closer to them which was throwing around Zombies like ragdolls

First yellow then blue then white

it was the player

his gloves were able to become stronger longer he fought and he threw his gloves at Barrage before he'd get hit by one of the Zombies and lose all of the momentum

When Barrage took those gloves and used the teachings of Tri Tip she became unstoppable

The only way the player could survive being surrounded by zombies was by him lifting his hands up to heal himself every time he'd get hurt

Where's showtime you ask? Well... he's a zombie

Being surrounded by his fans all the time and being completely surrounded didn't really do him any favors even if he was pretty fast he couldn't dodge hundreds of hands all moving towards him